

The Civil Rights Bill passed the House of Representatives last Friday, as recorded in our Congressional summary. The bill as passed was essentially modified in the text of the original Senate Bill. The bill prohibited any distinction on account of color in the admission of children to public schools, while the original House bill contained a provision that no child could be excluded from a school for reasons of race. The advantages were offered to all in public schools. The bill as passed, however, is, in short of this provision and leaves no reference to the school question, which we regard as a mistake. We think it was unnecessary to insist upon desegregized schools." is the present State of our feeling, if equal educational advantages were offered the two races in September of the school year 1964-65. The school year in the South is an imperative necessity, and, until not to depend upon

It will be seen that the bill to abolish capital punishment was defeated in the Senate, on its passage to be engrossed, by a vote 15 to 13—the one absent member being reported to be an opponent of the bill. This leaves little prospect of measure being carried, as it was considered strongest in the Senate. If there any force in the argument for the salutary effect of the gallows, there may be some to the effect of the gallows of capital punishment, pertinency in the suggestion none of their number, Bro. Rust of the Expressive Age, who says, "Perhaps, upon the whole, it is better that the law should be repealed. With the public sentiment so strongly and evenly divided upon the question, the effect of inflicting the extreme penalty upon the murderer which might otherwise be salutary will be wholly lost, it is perhaps better to repeal the law and see what the result will be."

are at perfect liberty to do, and it will be of interest to your readers, why, I suppose you put a waste basket. I have been an editor long enough to know it is indispensable in an editor's office. In any event, and with kindest memories to many dear old Rockland friends, I am, my dear old Gazette, your sincere well-wisher,
I. S. KALLOCH.

General Hersey is the fourth member of the next House of Representatives who has died since the elections.

Capt. Peter Kennedy, of Schooner Albion, which arrived here from Boston Saturday, reports that he lost a man on board the night before. The man was found as soon as it was known he was in the water. An attempt was made to put the schooner about but she missed stars and nothing could be done to save the man. It was blowing quite hard at the time and the water being very cold, he must have perished very soon. He was a Scotchman named Brady, and only about 20 years of age.

The recent scenes in the House of Representatives have not only been disgusting on account of their rudeness and vulgarity but have been ominous of new evil to the republic. With such a spirit as there exhibited, every one sees how easy would be to make the capital once more the scene of violence, and to place even the life of the nation again in peril.—Worcester Spy.

A moderate drinker was discoursing a day or two since to a crowd in a store in this vicinity. Said he: "A man who will get drunk is a fool. Just then a young man who was a stranger to all concerned, stepped in, and overhauling the remark said: 'I know not which is the greater fool, but such men as you are, are doing more harm in the world than a whole lot of drunkards. It was just such persons as you that led me down to a life of intemperance. I thought if Mr. A. could be a moderate drinker—so could I. But drink made me, and I thought I was lost. But I want to God and find help here. And now I am a saved man through Christ's help.' The crowd in the store murmured applause, while the moderate drinker was logically knocked down and silenced. These reformed men, you see, are the fellows to speak right out in meeting, without mincing matters."
